

EVALUATION METHODOLOGY OF THE PAPERS SUBMITTED FOR PUBLICATION IN RADA

1. The articles presented have an initial review in order to verify that they comply with the standards for the authors and to evaluate their relevance, originality and scientific quality. Once approved the initial review they are receipted and sent to two external reviewers, national or foreign, selected from a listing of researchers with proven background and experience in the paper subject.
2. In the event that one of the reviewers decides to accept the publication of the paper and the other rejects the paper publication, the manuscript is sent to a third reviewer. Their review is anonymous and, according to their opinion which is not appealable, the acceptance or rejection of the article is decided. Whatever the decision, the opinions and/or corrections of the reviewers they will be forwarded to the author.
3. The reviewers of the paper shall complete an ad hoc review form with their comments, rationale and decision on the paper.
4. The final decision to accept or reject the manuscript is carried out by the magazine's director.
5. Before the paper is published, a proof of printing will be sent to the author responsible for the correspondence. Corrections are allowed only for typographic errors.
